

Am I going to wake up after the operation?

Yes. Most patients who possess a clear sense of mind wake up after the operation with their minds as lucid as before. We draw the attention to the possibility of less than positive results in the case of patients who are already in danger of any deterioration of their lucidity before the operation. But in these cases it is not about the complication of the anesthesia, but more the danger of the brain surgery. In other words, everything depends on the seriousness of the disease.
